Narrative Architectural Description

Provide a detailed description of the property, including all character-defining features and any accessory resources. This is required for all properties.

This hip-roofed, neo-classical styled residence consists of a U-shaped plan. Built of limestone and stucco, the façade features numerous 6x6 paned double hung windows on the upper story and 2x4 paned French doors with transoms on the lower level. The slate roof has two single shed roof dormers and one ribbon of three conjoined dormers centrally located. The exterior walls are stucco with a limestone belt course and a row of dentils under the soffit. The centrally located main entrance protrudes slightly from the wall, features four Doric columns, and is surmounted by a decorative limestone railing. The two front columns have embossed fleur-de-lis capitals with decorative swags between the columns. In the center above the arched door is a protruding leaf-shaped keystone. The upper story features a French door with a wrought iron balconette with elaborate bracketry. Four massive stucco chimneys pierce the roof. A single-story sunroom is featured on the south elevation.

History of the Resource

Provide information on previous owners, land use(s), and construction and alteration dates in a narrative format. This is required for all intensive level surveys, NRPs, and nominations, and recommended for other identification efforts.

Designed by George D. Mason for Fremont Woodruff (Detroit lawyer) in 1916. Up to this point, Mason’s firm was heavily influenced by the Richardsonian Romanesque style. This was his first building designed in a neo-Classical or French Eclectic style. In all, Mason designed at least eleven houses in the Grosse Pointe community (nine of which are still standing). The house originally sat on a parcel that was 3.5 acres in size and ran from the shoreline of Lake St. Clair to East Jefferson Avenue (the original address was 17160 E. Jefferson). It remained in the Woodruff family until 1950. Sometime prior to 1975 the property was sold to Frank Donovan who subdivided the property, making several alterations to the house (the most significant being the renovation of the carriage house). He added several additional houses and made the carriage house (now 8 Donovan) his personal residence. Alterations to the main house appear to be the replacement of windows and downspouts and the addition of a four-car hip roofed detached garage.

Statement of Significance/Recommendation of Eligibility

Provide a detailed explanation of the property’s eligibility for the National Register. Include an evaluation under at least one of the four National Register Criteria and one Area of Significance. Include a discussion of the seven aspects of integrity and make a recommendation about eligibility. This is required for all properties.

Enough of the original fabric remains for this house to contribute to the district.
